Congresswoman Cortez used to be a walking meme among conservatives, and I think for all the wrong reasons. It is never wrong to legitimately criticize those in power, and in fact, this is necessary in a so-called free society. However, we also have to look at the evidence for what they are saying and doing. And it is simply a fact that the proposals that AOC and others like her have put forward are popular even among Republican voters. One such proposal is the Green New Deal, which has three major parts: infrastructure, environmentalism and a jobs program. All three are desperately needed, given the current state of our roads and bridges, the environment and the economy.

The second is Medicare for All, which Fox News proved is supported by a majority of Republicans. But what AOC pointed out correctly is that every Democrat who ran on Medicare for All won their reelection bid in 2020. This is true in swing districts, red districts and blue districts. There is a chart linked below that will show this. Not a single Democrat who ran for reelection won opposing Medicare for All. So why won't our leaders give it to us? Because they're owned and funded by Big Pharma and Big Oil. Even the Green New Deal, as much as it has been made fun of by conservatives, did not hurt the Democrats.
